

My Next Adventure\(?\)

Thursday, September 25, 2008 at 12:29am

I would like to spend some time learning Arabic next summer. I'm looking at schools in Yemen, Egypt, Oman, and Morocco. I'm comparing the different program lengths, quality, amount of free time to travel, cost and accomodation. I don't think it's possible to be more pumped :)

Alas, I have exhausted any financial flexibility with the Juanilama project. How could I ever afford to study in the Middle East? I say fuck it. I'll find a way. I just have to figure out where I'll work once I get back (for three months, then part time for my last semester, and possibly full time once I graduate...)

Alrighty, objective found. I just have to shoot for it. Wish me luck!

<http://andrewmanderson.spaces.live.com/>

Valerie Arseneau at 1:07am September 25

Wow! That would be something! As long as you send me a postcard I support you 100%. Go for it buddy!

I actually stumbled upon trip to Egypt with the Travel Agency of the campus. It was really cheap for what it was! I just can't see where in my calender I can fit the trip! haha. I was so damn tempted.

Sarah Burke at 1:36am September 25

Awesome idea!

I may be planning a trip to Morocco in May with my summer co-worker, Ansa. Her mother is Moroccan, although she grew up in France before moving to Canada a few years back and she still has a lot of family there.

I can ask her if she has any advice. ;)